CANCEL MEETING

The meeting of the Bristol Borough PTA scheduled for this evening in the high school cafeteria has been cancelled.

FOREIGN POLICY DEBATE

For the first time in the present generation, Congress now has got its teeth into a free and frank debate on American foreign policy.

This has been brought about by many factors, some of them accidental. Back in the days when Franklin Roosevelt was President, he was his own foreign policy. No one could debate it, because no one knew what it was. His various Secretaries of State and other diplomatic chiefs were in the dark along with everyone else. The secret deals made with Russia at the various Big Three meetings were kept secret from Mr. Roosevelt's close associates just as much as from the American people—if we are to believe the memoirs of various important persons up to and including Winston Churchill.

No one could debate over Mr. Truman's foreign policy before this, first because no one knew for sure what the policy was, and second, no one knew whether it was really Mr. Truman's, or belonged to the nebulous or imaginary "bi-partisan" experts.

The further unhappy fact is that since the war the American people have been too busy making money, and President Truman too busy spending it, for anyone to care very much what the foreign policy was. The President made various dramatic shifts—reversed himself numerous times—got into and out of various jams such as the Berlin affair—and from time to time reported to the American people that all was well, and would continue that way if he was just let alone.

Then along came Korea. Suddenly the fathers and mothers of America found their sons defending an imaginary line on the other side of the world. For years they had been hearing about the efficiency of the Truman Administration in building up our defenses — how the reorganized and combined military forces were mightier than ever — about what wonderful guns and planes and bombs were being built with upwards of $50 billions of tax moneys appropriated for that purpose — about what loyal friends we had made abroad with our international giveaways.

The brutal fact is that President Truman ordered the American boys into Korea quite unequipped to hold their own, lacking in numbers and in arms and in support. Whether in doing so he countermanded military plans of long standing, calling for air and sea punishment of the Chinese Reds rather than actual land operations, is a key question which certainly ought to be answered.

There is no use reviewing the bloody and disastrous history of the Korean engagement, which is the worst

Of the older group, honors for the greatest number of years went to a 70 year old Philadelphia groom, who was marrying a 56 year old bride, and to a 67 year old Trenton woman, who married a

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan
(Distributed by International News Service)

The budget message goes to Congress on January 15 . . . it looks now like billions for defense and 24 cents for aspirin.

The President will deliver his state of the union message in person but the budget will be carried in by eight men . . . all weight lifters.

Copies will be available from the public printer and they make a nice addition to the night table . . . people who can't sleep won't want to after they get past the first chapter.

The nice thing about the national budget is that, unlike the family budget, they first decide what they want then they get the money for it.

In our house we have to take the money available and do what we can get with it but I like the other way better and trust that the government eventually will allow us to borrow the system.

Anyway with three messages coming up, pen pals need not expect to hear from Washington for several more days.

WHO IS WELL ADJUSTED?

A magazine has asked various prominent people to define the "best-adjusted" person. The term does need clarification.

Various definitions offered by psychological and psychiatric experts are in a jargon that may lend precision for those familiar with specialists' terminology, but to laymen they lack clarity. Popularized definitions are likely to carry the connotation that to be well adjusted is necessarily to be a fatalist, a conformer or a Milquetoast.

To be well adjusted is to be in good mental health. But the mark of good mental health is not placidity or resignation. It is something positive. The well-adjusted person is not a bellyacher. To that extent he accepts things as they are.

But he is not so blind or indifferent that he cannot see anything wrong with his own life or things as they are about him. He simply reacts to it in a more positive and healthy way than the badly adjusted person.

If he thinks something is wrong, he corrects it if he can—and if it is not too trivial to bother with. If it cannot be corrected immediately, he does what he considers worth doing on a long-range basis. If it is something he cannot do anything about, he makes the best of things as they are. He doesn't let developments convert him into a sourpuss.

He generally likes people. He can see their faults, and likes them anyway. In the case of people he does not like instinctively, he makes allowances. He realizes those people may have greater problems than he is aware of.

But it makes little sense to talk about the well-adjusted person in a vacuum. Too much depends on what it is necessary to adjust to. To be well adjusted in a communist prison camp would call for reactions that might resemble symptoms of madness in a normal environment. A well-adjusted person under extreme strain might act like a neurotic who is under no great outer pressure.

A definition of the well-adjusted person, it seems, depends on who makes it.

ENSHRINE "LUCKY LADY"

"Lucky Lady II," the famous B-50 superfortress which flew nonstop around the world is to be enshrined in the Smithsonian Institution, along with Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" and the Wright brothers' "Flyer." Before the great ship becomes a permanent display it will tour the United States as part of the educational program being conducted by the U. S. Air Service.

An XC-97 Boeing strato-freighter is also to be made part of the Smithsonian aeronautical exhibit. This ship's record of a transcontinental flight of six hours and four minutes is still unsurpassed. Progress made by aeronautics in the last quarter century is phenomenal, as this exhibit will reveal.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1950
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 — Our Canadian cousins have a habit which we might well emulate in the United States—a habit of protecting their customs, their institutions, and their own internal security promptly and with a minimum of rigamarole.

In 1945, for example, when Soviet Embassy code clerk, Igor Gouzenko, told Canadian authorities of the existence of a vast Russian espionage network operating in the dominion, the Canadians cleaned out the network with neatness and despatch.

In the process, they told our own government of the operations of certain Russian spies within the United States. Included in the information they turned over to Washington was a tip-off on the true character of our old friend Alger Hiss.

So what happened to Alger? So he was made the $20,000 a year president of the Carnegie endowment for International Peace. And he still hasn't been made to serve even a single day of the five-year prison sentence meted out to him in January of 1950—one year ago—when he was convicted of falsely telling a Grand Jury he never had passed State Department documents to Whittaker Chambers, and that he had never seen Chambers after Jan. 1, 1937.

The American Bar Association just now is starting off on a campaign to rid our legal profession of communists, a move that will freshen the air in our courts and Congressional committee rooms. Once again, we are merely trailing along on the path already beaten by our northern neighbors in the interests of their own internal security.

The trail was blazed by the so-called "benchers" of the Law Society of British Columbia—a group which corresponds roughly with the committee on admissions of our bar associations, which passes on the eligibility of applicants for admission to our bar associations and the accompanying right to practice law.

The benchers decided, over a year ago, that more membership in the Communist party was reason enough to refuse a person the right to practice law. The individual involved, one Gordon Martin, admitted that he was a Communist but professed nevertheless that he was a completely loyal Canadian and would never do anything inimical to the interests of Canada. The benchers decided, with what seems to me to be extreme acumen, that this simply could not be; that no one could be a Communist and at the same time a loyal Canadian.

The case was taken to the British Columbia Court of Appeals, the highest judicial body in the province. Last summer, the five members of that court unanimously upheld the benchers. Their opinions contained some thoughts and words which, for my money, our own supreme court might well consider carefully.

The British Columbia Court's main opinion was written by associate Justice O'Halloran. He noted Martin's argument "that an avowed Marxist Communist can be a good citizen of our country; that the contrary cannot be said unless he is caught planning or perpetrating some overt act against the state, such as (to give an extreme example) blowing up the parliament buildings."

To those arguments, Justice O'Halloran said:

"Communists and their sympathizers have been astute to find their way into so-called peace, youth, cultural, student welfare and various other societies and organizations, and there skillfully indoctrinate the young, the impressionable, and the irresponsible, with theories designed to weaken and destroy the foundations of our free society.

"Under the amoebic guise of promoting idealistic movements, they have succeeded in obtaining support from many people, happy, without much thought or enquiry, to give their support to anything on its face sounding as if it would benefit mankind in general.

"With Soviet Russia engaged in a 'cold war' with the western nations and determined to obtain mastery of the world, these friends of Soviet Russia would weaken the western nations to the point that Soviet Russia, with their fifth and sixth columnist assistance, could be able to capture Canada and the United States by telephone.

"They would repeat here the methods of national disintegration their fellow-Communists so successfully carried out in France during the early stages of the last war after Germany and Soviet Russia had come to a mutual understanding."

To which I can say only "amen," and I wish our own courts would recognize the facts of present-day life as well. If they did, we would not be so dangerously close to the point where, in the words of Justice O'Halloran, Russia "could be able to capture Canada and the United States by telephone."

AN EASY METHOD TO REMOVE HOLIDAY SPOTS AND STAINS

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)

Accidents will happen — and especially during the holiday season there is more chance of spilling rich foods that leave unsightly spots and stains.

Home removal of stains is easy if you follow a few simple directions. First rule is always to give first aid to the spot as soon as possible.

The pad method of sponging will avoid setting the spot further, or causing a worn spot that sometimes results from too much rubbing and scrubbing. Make a pad of soft, clean, absorbent cotton cloth, such as an old sheet, and place under the spot.

Take another piece of cloth, make a smaller pad, and dip lightly into the cleaning fluid. If you do not know what made the spot or stain, use cold water. Avoid warm or hot water since it may set the stain.

Sponge the spot lightly in a curving motion. "Feather out" the edge of the spot by sponging lightly around the edges from the center outward. As the soiled spot is sponged off into the pads, change to fresh areas on them and continue sponging until the spot is removed.

If you blow gently as you sponge and use small amounts of fluid, you can avoid forming a ring on the fabric. When a ring is formed, sponge again with fresh fluid, blowing continuously, then rub the fabric together briskly, or scratch gently with your fingernail or the edge of a spoon or coin.

FIRE SAVINGS

CHICAGO, (INS) — Reorganization of the fire department in Providence, R. I., has cut the number of fire stations from 29 to 17 and the number of fire companies from 37 to 30 without reducing the efficiency of the department. According to the American Public Works Association, the reorganization, which was initiated during the war as an economy measure, is now 90 percent complete. Savings in men and equipment are estimated at $200,000 annually.

beating (excepting possibly Pearl Harbor) which American soldiers have ever taken. For a time we thought we were going to be victorious, going to be "home by Christmas"—but then it developed that we had walked into a second trap and today we seem to be facing hopeless odds.

With brass which possibly sets a historic record, the Truman Administration is seeking to stand out from under the blame for this and similar disasters, some of which have not yet made themselves felt to the American people. The plea is that in this emergency we must have "unity," and that the need for getting out of the hole is so great that we ought not to think about who led us in.

Former President Hoover two weeks ago summarized the world crisis which we face, and made his own suggestions. His recommendations, while of great merit, have possibly even less significance than the fact that he did what the Truman Administration has signally failed to do—gave the American people an honest and factual appraisal of where we stand.

In doing so, he rendered both the Republican Party and the American people a supremely important service, because he gave them the makings of a new and infinitely superior foreign policy which can be substituted for the muddles and mistakes of the Truman regime.

Thunders of eloquence have been turned against the Hoover speech. It has been "answered" a score of times, by the President himself, by Secretary of State Acheson several different ways, by John Foster Dulles, and by a great horde of amateur experts beating the drums to keep the Truman "new order" in power.

The final answer, it may be, is being written in Korea by Joe Stalin and his Red China stooges.

Mr. Hoover recommended that we save lives and resources by pulling out from traps such as this, where it appears we may not be able to stay in the first place, and in the second can do nothing valuable if we do stay, and in the third place aren't really wanted by either side.

Even more important, Mr. Hoover warned that Europe itself can turn into a large-scale Korea, if we continue to pour men and arms there without reference to whether the Europeans will stand up with us in case of attack by Russia.

About all which Mr. Truman, Mr. Acheson and the others have been able to find to say in reply, is to intimate broadly that Mr. Hoover must be lacking in courage even to discuss the possibility of retreat or defeat. That's no answer. Above all, it is no answer to the young men now in service, or shortly to be there, and who will die like flies, and die in vain, in these foreign "quicksands," if Mr. Hoover is right but is shouted down by Mr. Truman's clique.

Congress has the power to get to the bottom of the questions. Moreover, this is Congress' job. It may be that our worst dangers are here at home—and if so, and if these are to be met, only Congress can meet them. At any event, if the American people and their Congress can't meet the responsibilities they face in their own country, their chances of standing up to the needs abroad are very slim indeed.

Entertains in Honor of His Fifth Anniversary

Charles G. Brodie, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Brodie, Sr., of Pond street, was a pleasing little host on Tuesday afternoon in celebration of his fifth birthday anniversary.

Games were played and refreshments served to: Elaine Moyer, Susan Fegley, Marcia Lynn, Marita Scharg, Timothy Reardon, Jr., Milton Miller, 3d, John K. DeLong, 3d, John Kazimer, Bristol, and Ronald Ruske, of Covington, Ind. Others were: D. H. Fegley, Mrs. William Moyer, Mrs. Timothy Reardon, Sr., Mrs. Milton Miller, Jr., Mrs. Herbert Scharg, Mrs. Russell B. Carty and Mrs. Viola G. Brodie.

Favors given were plastic baskets filled with candy and coloring books. A large decorated birthday cake formed the table centerpiece, and the rooms were attractively decorated in keeping with the holiday season.

Charles was the recipient of many nice gifts. On Wednesday morning in the kindergarten class of the Jefferson avenue school, taught by Mrs. Faust, Charles again was host to the pupils of his class. Cookies were served and each one received candy favors and coloring books.

Good New Year's Resolutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

PARENTS who wish to make some New Year's resolutions might desire to consider some or all of the following:

I'm going to try to be a better wife or husband and do my best to build on the strength of my spouse and often celebrate his or her successes, so that we might grow more companionable and together might provide more family love and security for our children.

Therefore, I shall try to speak less often to my spouse or anybody else about his or her weaknesses, even to think less often of them. I shall endeavor to work upon myself to win the cooperation of my husband or wife in all matters related to the family, especially to the children.

Physical Health
I shall try to cultivate good physical and emotional health in myself, so as to promote best mental health and happiness in my spouse and my children. Accordingly, I shall, with the help of my husband or wife, aim to regulate my everyday work and life at home in such a way as to avoid as far as possible excessive fatigue and needless nervous strain but enjoy relaxation, so that I may have physical and mental poise and be always a master of my emotions. I shall pray for calm and poise and self-control.

I shall try to control my voice as well as my speech, so as never to speak in loud or shrill tones or utter words which might stir up anger or undue antagonisms in any other member of the family. I won't scold or nag or engage in word-battles in my home.

Grows and Develops
In 1951 I shall try hard to understand my children, how each one grows and develops, what he can think and do, what his strongest interests and urges are at each stage of his development. Always I shall try to put myself in my imagination in his place so as to see a little as he sees, understand a little as he understands and feel a little as he feels.

I shall not make fun of my children or laugh at their mistakes or resort to shame and ridicule for punishment. Neither shall I let myself grow angry at their mistakes when they try to learn. When I feel the least vexed while helping a child with his lessons I shall walk away from him, knowing I am then unfit to be in his presence. (My bulletin "Parents and the Child's Homework" may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this paper.)

With the help of the other parent, I am going to try to guide and discipline my children so skillfully that they will learn to respect the rights and feelings of other persons, learn self-reliance and responsibility; and thus enable them to feel less annoyed at me and me at them, and make it possible for a maximum of love and enjoyment between us—knowing that without sufficient early restraint and consequent later self-restraint no child can enjoy as much affection as he deserves.

Precious Persons
I am going to try to grow up with my children and treat them as precious persons, have fun with them and enjoy them. I am going to smile and laugh more in 1951 than in any earlier year and thus arouse more smiles and laughter in our family.

By everything I do and say in my family I will try to prove abundant affection for all of them and thus try to win their abiding love and esteem.

These and other goals which most parents would like to aim at in 1951 are expressed in "A Parent's Prayer" I once wrote for myself as parent (which may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this paper).

TWO BOXES

NEW YORK — (INS) — Polyna Stoska, Met soprano, observing that so many women attend concerts at which the music of Sibelius is featured, suggests that in line with the plan of the National Arts Foundation to collect money to buy cigars for the 85th birthday of the composer, that women cigar smokers contribute two boxes of stogies for Sibelius.

ONE of the largest pork chops in history is making this meat an ideal money-saving dish these days—just in time for filling winter meals.

This week, A & P's Service for Homemakers recommends a meal that will do justice to the most robust appetites: stuffed pork chops. The recipe calls for four double rib chops, which should be slit through from the fat to the bone. This pocket will leave space for stuffing.

To prepare the stuffing, saute one medium onion, chopped fine, in 2 tablespoons of hot fat. Add 4 ounces of chopped mushrooms and cook about 2 minutes. Then add one cup of bread cubes, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, and salt to taste. For a particularly savory stuffing, add a little sage or poultry seasoning and a pinch of rosemary. To moisten the mixture, add one or two tablespoons of sour cream.

Now pack the stuffing into the slit between the chops. To keep the stuffing in place wind a string two or three turns around each chop. Arrange the four chops, standing, in a roasting pan. Pour 1/4 cup of water around them; cover, and bake at 350°F. for 30 minutes. Then remove the cover and bake for another 30 minutes, or until brown and done at the center.

A particularly careful sauce to accompany the chops is sour-cream gravy. To prepare, pour the drippings from the roasting pan into a bowl. Add 1 1/4 cups of water. Skim fat from the drippings, and put 3 tablespoons of fat in a saucepan. Add 3 tablespoons of flour and brown. Then pour in the drippings from the bowl and a little more water as necessary. Stir and cook until thickened. Slowly add 1/2 cup of sour cream and heat gently with out boiling. Beat the gravy with a whisk or fork while heating.

Serve the pork with a green vegetable and canned or frozen corn. There will be plenty for four. A welcome dessert will be rum raisin ice cream, topped off with coffee.

NEWS OF INTEREST TO PA. FARMERS

By International News Service
HARRISBURG, Jan. 4—(INS)—The Federal price support program took another jolt from Pennsylvania farmers when tobacco growers voted against marketing quotas for 1951.

Tobacco men echoed sentiments of potato growers who passed up Federal aid in favor of unrestricted planting and a price reflecting market conditions.

Farmers in the seven tobacco-growing counties voted more than six to one against Federal quotas for binder tobacco. The production and marketing administration for Pennsylvania reported 311 favored quotas in 1951 while 381 backed them for 1952-53. On the other hand, the committee reported, 2166 opposed quota restrictions at any time.

A two-thirds vote is required for effecting quotas, PMCA secretary John Smith reported.

Therefore, even before an official announcement from Washington, Pennsylvania's tobacco program was headed for the shelf.

Growers of filler and wrapper tobacco voted 39 to 4 against three-year quotas and 39 to 26 against one-year quotas.

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan set a national marketing tobacco quota last November of 47,366,999 pounds for the 1951 crop of Pennsylvania type 41 cigar filler tobacco.

A national quota of 70,900,000 pounds was fixed for all other cigar filler and cigar binder tobacco.

Type 41 is grown in Berks, Chester, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Lebanon and York counties.

Type 53 cigar filler and binder tobacco is grown in Clinton, Juniata, Lycoming, Northumberland, Snyder and Tioga counties.

A slight acreage reduction has been proposed by the committee, according to Chairman Clyde Zehner, "to bring supplies in line with contemplated demand for the 1951-52 marketing year."

Zehner hailed Brannan's announcement that marketing quotas on corn will be dropped for the 1951 crop and that acreage allotments will be higher next year.

The purpose, Zehner said, "is to permit farmers to increase meat production and at the same time have enough reserves to be on the safe side."

"Continued high income and restrictions on certain types of consumer goods will mean that people will have more money to spend on food and that always means an increased demand for meat," Zehner said.

The higher 1951 acreage allotments for the state's corn crop should encourage farmers to use available feed in breeding more sows, he explained.

"Corn acreage allotments applying in commercial areas will not be shown until later in the winter," he said. "We have definite assurance that they will be high enough to provide a substantial increase in production next year."

Trek Over Area To Make Bird Census

13 sparrow hawks, a few doves, 350 mallards. An oriole and a mockingbird were reported, but not seen on Saturday by the group.

The temperature all day Saturday ranged from 20 to 40 degrees but the following members trekked the country for this census, which is taken each year the week between Christmas and New Year's for the National Audubon Society: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McConnell, Holland; Lester Thomas, Adolph Herzog, Charles Burke, Richboro; Edward Rhine, Langhorne; Miss Rose Huston, Miss Frances Schmidt, Bryn Gwylled; David Jarden, Huntingdon Valley; Miss Doris Erdman, Mrs. Alan Brady, Newtown; and George Riley, Philadelphia.

Most of the birds of this area go to Penns Manor for the winter, along the Delaware, because of the shortage of water here, most of the streams, except the Neshaminy, being unavailable in the cold weather.

FOUR ROOMS EQUAL TO FIVE

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

WHEN are four rooms five? Sounds like a stickler, but it's easy to answer when you look at the floor plans for today's house.

This is a four room house but it offers five room efficiency because the living room has a large dining space. It's set off to the right, near the kitchen. A small wall section shuts off part of the living room and provides privacy.

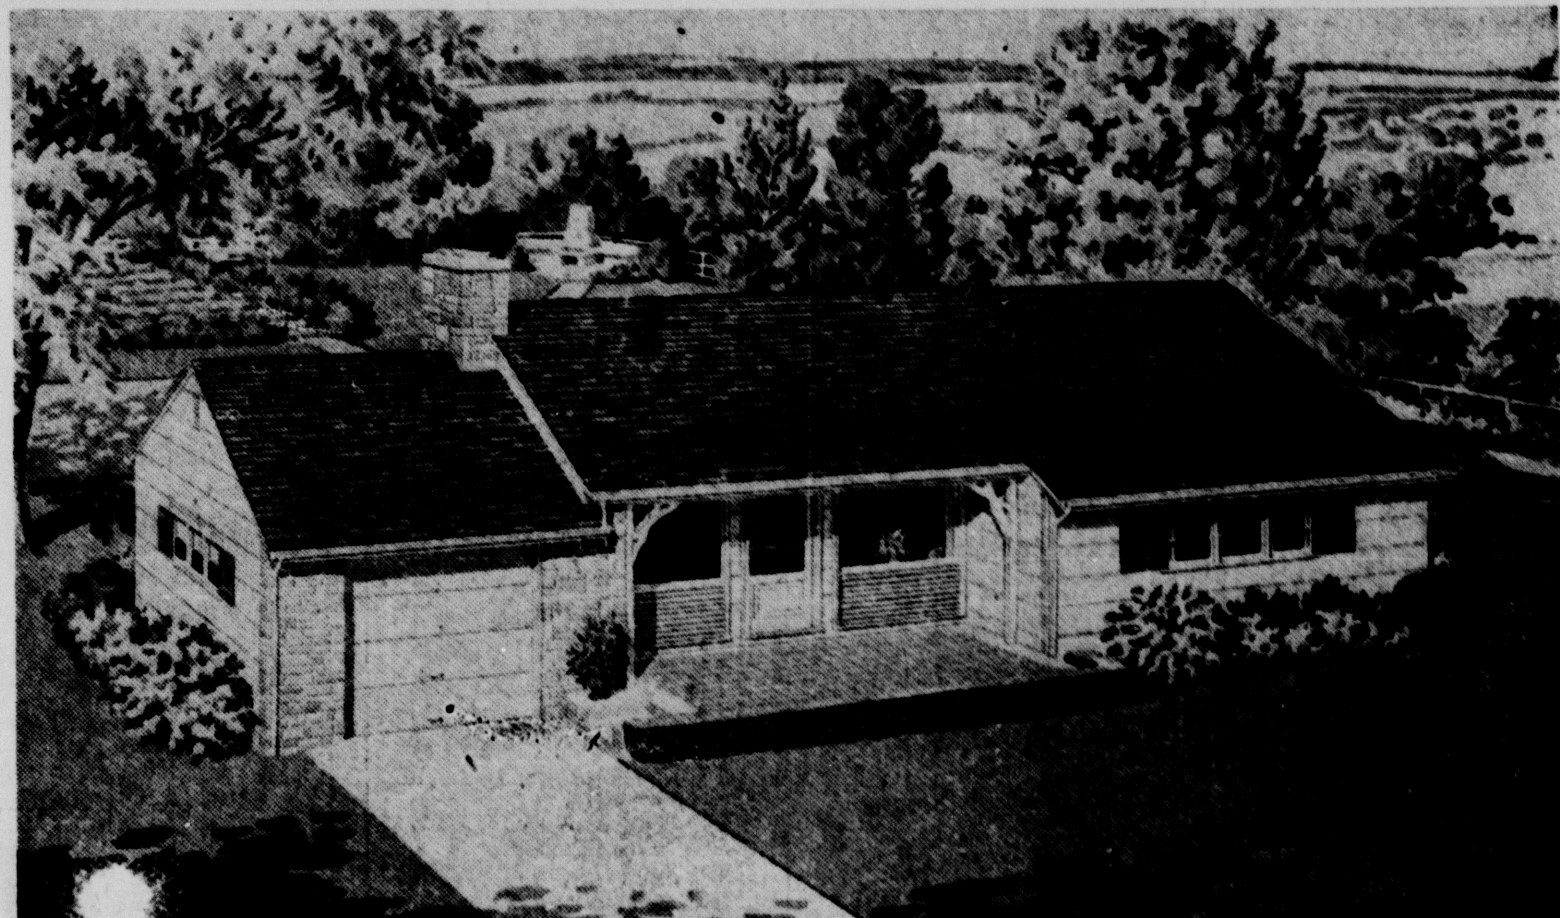

The living room itself is ideally large. Like many shown in house plans on these pages, it runs the depth of the house. From a decorative standpoint this is important, because large picture windows are featured at either end of the room. These provide plenty of light, good ventilation and, in spring and summer, a delightful view of the shrubbery outside.

The kitchen is compactly set up to save steps. There's no drudgery for the homemaker who chooses this plan. Cabinets and appliances line two walls. The refrigerator is adjacent to the range, which is next to a large work area and the sink.

The bath, which has a linen storage unit conveniently nearby, is off a hallway leading to the two bedrooms. There's a good-sized storage cabinet in this hallway, too.

One of the bedrooms has three windows, which furnish a picture view of the front grounds of the house. The other bedroom, large enough to accommodate twin beds, has two windows designed to provide cross ventilation. Each room, of course, has its own closet and, in addition, there's a closet in the hallway that separates the rooms.

The garage is attached to the house and adds considerably to the exterior view. Its stone trim provides a pleasing contrast to the white frame construction.

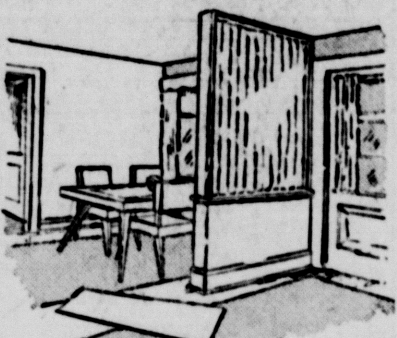

THE ATTACHED GARAGE and the large open porch and terrace add appreciably to the interesting exterior of today's house and carry out the ranch effect. The basic construction of the exterior is frame, but the stone trim on the garage makes a pleasant contrast.

The house comprises 17,838 cubic feet; the garage, 3,223 cubic feet.

An information sheet giving sketches and diagrams, which will enable you to judge whether this is the house for you, is available. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to this newspaper for the name and address of the firm from which this sheet may be obtained. Ask for "V-40."

To arrive at a general estimate of the construction cost of this house, ascertain construction costs per cubic foot in your locality, then multiply this by the number of cubic feet given here. The result should be within 10 per cent either way of the cost.

THIS IS THE dinette, the fifth room in a four room house. A small partition does the trick.

Pick Shoes for Style, Comfort

These suede slingback pumps are a good choice for late afternoon and informal evening wear. They have polished leather soles and trim.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a woman abuses her feet she pays and pays and pays. The little step is lost, the lines of her figure may change, and not for the better, she gets frowns between her eyes and there is no health in her. She buys shoes with scarcely a thought of the effect they may have upon her feet; the whole idea is to get the kind that "looks cute."

Think of the time and effort women lavish upon their hands and complexions, what they spend for permanents, hair rinses, manicures and cosmetics! But their poor hoofs go begging, not for style and fashion elegance but for comfort, health and common sense. Properly-shod feet are a good-looking asset, instead of a drawback, will contribute to good posture, a youthful walk, a fresh, lively appearance. If you are hobbling along on spikes with your spinal column thrown out of alignment take a serious view of this subject.

Dressy Occasions

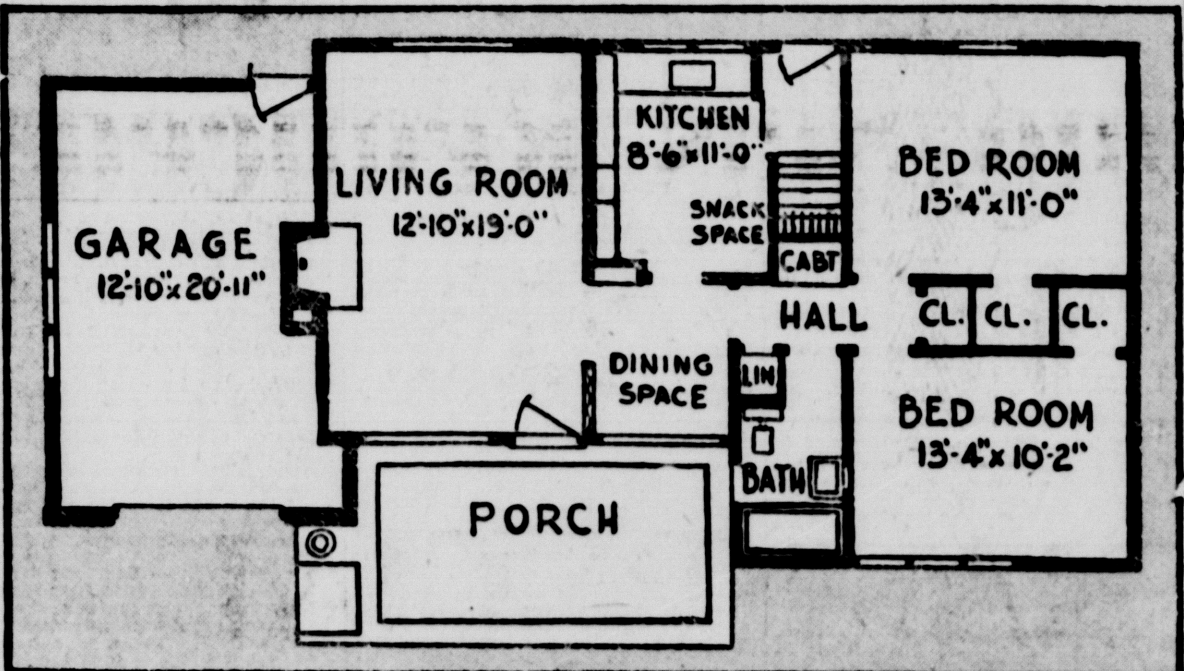

You can have your high heels or dressy occasions out for wear with suits you should select a practical shoe, one with leather uppers and flexible leather soles. The oxford is ideal for comfort and pumps are setting a pace in the style picture for dressy, tailored or casual wear. The pump is the shoe to enhance sleek foot lines and flattery below the hemline.

Pumps come in a variety of modes. They have latched touches that are irresistible. You will find them of suede with black patent trim, smart as all get-out. The pump is many shoes, not just one, adding graceful airs to feminine feet.

Be as fussy about your stockings as you are about your shoes. Get them sufficiently long so they will be a full inch longer than your foot. Short stockings can throw the toes into a huddle; in that event you will be in for plenty of misery. The shape of the toes may change, toe nails thicken and then what? The sight of your feet will give you the shivers.

If you abuse your feet you will pay and pay and pay.

NEW TYPE CAPE GIVES PROTECTION IN RAINY WEATHER

By Frances Vannoy

Home Economics Extension Rep. Newest of designs planned for home sewing is one for a child's poncho or rain cape. The cape, Indian style, is made from less than two yards of any shower-resistant fabric or rainproof plastic film.

This fold-up and tuck-away cape with hood attached is loose hanging and slips on easily over the lightweight dresses or winter coats and jackets. It isn't warm, but will protect its wearer from showers.

The hood is styled to give clear vision at the sides for safety in street crossings. Another feature is its visor, styled to protect the eyes from rain. Still another safety feature might be provided by making the poncho in a bright colored material so the children can be seen easier by motorists.

The cape is quick and easy for a youngster to get in and out. With a zipper fastening from chest to chin, a sizeable pull-tab will help the child manage the zipper. There are wrist straps to slip the hands through to keep the cape securely in place or it can hang free.

The garment is inexpensive and easy to make. For a child eight to ten years old, you will need one and three-fourth yards of 40-inch material. One and five-eighths yards of 36-inch material will make a five to seven year size. The hood is not lined and the visor is stiffened by rows of stitching, placed one-fourth inch apart. A 7-inch zipper is used for the neck closing. For further details on making it, consult the Agricultural Extension Office, Doylestown, Pa.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Why Does She Wait?

Washington, Jan. 4
As the year 1951 begins, the state of the nation seems almost incredibly bad. Perhaps as the months pass unity may be achieved and leadership developed. But, as of now, a great crisis has arisen and from whatever angle viewed our inadequacy seems appallingly evident. It is all very well to talk about the duty of strengthening the national morale. But there also is the duty of facing realities. This we have not been doing at all and every attempt to make us do so seems to promote discord and dissension. The attitude of the Soviet Republic and its satellite states toward us and our attitude toward them have become so openly and vehemently hostile that a titanic and catastrophic clash threatens.

If the grand smash comes we cannot, of course, permit our faith in the ultimate triumph of America to be shaken, but there is no sense now in trying to paint a bright picture. In Korea the great bulk of our military land strength and the bulk of our Navy and Air Force are engaged in a hot, costly and apparently hopeless war against the Chinese Communists, whose cause is savagely championed by the Soviets in the United Nations. Because of the Russians the efforts of that organization to avert aggression and promote peace are disarmingly feeble. It is rounding out a five-year record of almost complete frustration so far as progress toward its great goal is concerned. The continued vicious and terrific Russian propaganda against us, together with Soviet acts of unprovoked aggression, we have compelled us to recognize the menace of a third world war, in which the survival of the nation is at stake.

We have launched a gigantic defense program. Many billions of dollars are being poured into armament. Hundreds of thousands of young men are being mustered into service. The whole civilian population will be called upon for sacrifices. All sorts of restrictions along with terrifically heavy taxes will be imposed. The building of the vast defense machine essential to our continued existence is certain to dislocate our economy very badly. Life in general in these United States will shortly be considerably less soft for everybody. For a good many weeks we have been talking and writing about these things. Now they are about to happen.

There is, of course, nothing to do except see it through to the end with the minimum of waste and blundering we can manage and an inflexible determination not to weaken no matter what the odds. In this connection there is one great basic fact which protrudes—to wit, our shocking military feebleness. This is not only admitted—it is proclaimed. Authoritative information has been printed and promulgated over the air so widely that hardly anyone could miss it. Certainly, if the Russians and Chinese do not know how defenseless we are against assault at this moment, it must be because they are stone deaf and can't read. The withdrawal of the United Nations forces in Korea is humiliating demonstration of our armed feebleness in Asia.

As for the Western Front in Europe, we have already told the world that if the Russians attack we and our allies are in no position to make a successful resistance. We would, in fact, be overrun. They outnumber us in equipped divisions, in tanks and in airplanes—in everything but the atom bomb, and they have that in number about which we can only guess. So, what it amounts to is this—we are now unprepared to cope with an attacking Communist China in Asia or an attacking Russian army in Europe. Nor will we be prepared for a year and a half to two years. The question then arises, if these are the facts—and they are not disputed—and if, as most believe, the fixed Russian purpose is to overthrow our Government by violence and destroy the capitalistic system completely, why does she not attack now?

Why does she wait? Allowing for our blundering and waste, still we grow stronger every month. Give us time—say a year and a half—and we will be in a position not only to resist but to check Communist aggression everywhere. Give us time and the odds against us will disappear. Why does she wait? If anyone knows the answer to that it has not been given. Only two are possible—either the Russians are so far behind us in atom-bomb production that they fear to start a full-scale war; or they have—and have not had—any intentions of doing so. If the latter is true then the explanation of their vicious threat is to prod us into such gigantic expenditures that our Federal finances will crumble under the weight and we be reduced to an economic chaos, from which communism would result. Thus, the Soviets could win the war without losing a soldier.

Our intelligence about the real Russian intentions is so negligible as to leave us nothing to do but guess. The one sure thing is that we cannot afford to take a chance. It is just ordinary common sense to prepare for the worst. In brief, we should assume that an attack is imminent and inevitable and use every ounce of strength and every hour we have to meet it. There is now no excuse for disunity and poor leadership. There is no excuse for inefficiency and politics. Every possible protective step should be taken. One very obvious one is the step to remove from Germany the wives and children of American soldiers who obviously would be unable to reach safety in the advent of a Soviet attack. We are no longer an army of occupation there. As rapidly as possible we are becoming an army of defense. A bill to send home these dependents was introduced in the House last week by Representative Burnside, of West Virginia. It should be passed.

A BIG JOB FOR 1951

In mobilizing the nation's resources and manpower to meet the emergency that faces us, telephone service plays a vital part. It must be fast; it must be dependable; and there must be as much of it as available materials make possible.

It's fortunate, therefore, that Pennsylvania's telephone facilities have grown so tremendously during the last five years.

Since 1945 we've put a million more telephones in service, more than half again as many as we had five years ago...and we're handling some four million more calls daily than we did five years ago.

We've added nearly 10,000 people to our telephone organization, too. Now, nearly 32,000 thoroughly trained and well-equipped Bell Telephone men and women bring to their jobs all the know-how, the experience, and the ingenuity that have given Pennsylvanians day by day service of high quality and have helped solve emergency problems in the past.

But we know that yesterday's expansion can't possibly meet tomorrow's needs. Still further expansion is the outlook for the telephone industry in 1951...with plans geared closely to the requirements of Government and defense preparation.

In addition, as far as material limitations permit, we'll keep on expanding our facilities for normal residence and business service.

You can be sure, come what may, that the men and women of the telephone company will continue to provide the best possible service at the lowest cost.

SIMMONS' GOAL SCORES WIN FOR THE HIBERNIANS

A field goal by "Charlie" Simmons in the last five seconds of play gave the Hibernians a one-point 54-53 victory over the Cornwells Boys' Club last night in a Bristol Basketball League tilt on the Rohm and Haas floor.

Simmons' goal was made on a tap near the basket. A scramble was taking place when Simmons leaped up and batted the ball into the basket to give his team the triumph of the hard-fought game.

The lead changed hands several times and at one time during the first quarter, the Cornwells team had a 15-7 advantage. But the Hibs kept fighting back and during the second period play had closed the gap at 18-15, scoring 11 points while blanking the ultimate losers.

Later in the second session, the Hibs went in front, 23-22, on a fielder by "Bill" Burr. But "Bill" Butz took the lead back for the Cornwells contingent and when "Pete" Bound hit the cords for three consecutive fielders, the Boys' Club was able to build a half-time margin of 34-27.

At the start of the second half, Tom Donnelly, Burr and Bill Ennis scored double-digits in rapid order to reduce the Cornwells' lead to 42-33. A foul by Horace Saxton evened the count but Curran's two-pointer put his club in front, 36-34. Norman White knotted the count for the Hibs while Saxton scored on a pass by Burr to put the Cornwells ahead. Kisters made a Cornwells' foul and Burr retaliated with a Hibs' free shot. "Reggie" Samero again tied the score with a side shot. Simmons, Burr and White managed to roll up the Hibernians' score to 46 while before the period closed, Curran and Harry Kisters scored twin-pointers to make the score, 46-43.

Burr scored for the Hibs and it appeared to be curtains for the Cornwells team until the Boundmen rallied and when Kister hit the cords for a double-decker, the scoreboard read: Hibernians, 49; Cornwells, 48. White counted a two-pointer for the Hibs while Kisters and Butz dropped in three points, making the count, 51-50, with Cornwells in the lead. Curran made it 53-50 as the time rolled on. White scored two points for the Hibs and then Cornwells "froze" the ball for over a minute. With 59 seconds remaining to be played, Pete Bound was fouled and he chose to throw-in the ball, planning on another "freeze." But the Hibs rushed the players, forcing a shot which was missed. The Hibs took possession on the side, worked the ball to their basket where Ennis missed a shot. The ball bounded into the air where several players began tapping it. But Simmons reached up and scored the field goal which clinched the game, 54-53.

Bill Burr bucketed eight fielders and four out of six fouls for the winners for twenty points with White getting 14. Butz had 14 points for the losing team, despite the fact that he was shut out in the third quarter.

ROHM & HAAS TOPS 5TH WARD BY SCORE OF 46-43

The Rohm & Haas team finally broke into the victory column of the Bristol Basketball circuit last night as it topped the Fifth Ward Sporting Club 46-43, on the winner's court.

The chemical mixers used their height to a good advantage over the youthful Fifth Ward team but the latter was aggressive and could have won the game from the foul line. The losers made but six of their 16 free tosses. Rohm & Haas only had seven foul throws and made four.

Twice during the contest, the Warders staged rallies which offset Rohm & Haas leads. The Maple Beach aggregation had built a half-time margin of 22-10 when suddenly in the third period, the Warders began a spurt which gave them a 25-24 lead on a field goal by Fred Costantino. But the chemical workers came back and took a 7-point lead at the close of the quarter.

The Rohm & Haas team, thanks to some fine shooting by "Jim" Egli, again had a ten-point lead in the final session but "Vic" Caufi put in three beautiful shots to put Fifth Ward back into the ball game, only to lose out by a three-point margin. Caufi had seven field goals and a foul for 15 of his team's points. Egli and Hamilton had 13 points each for the winners. Hamilton had a fine average in the first three quarters of the game when he made six field goals in eight shots tried.

SERVE CRANBERRY PUNCH AT PARTIES

By Frances Vannoy
Home Economics Extension Rep.

If you want a slightly different refreshment for your entertaining try sparkling cranberry punch. A punch bowl adds a touch of glamour to the refreshment table.

Colorful red cranberry juice can be used in several ways to fill your punch bowl. Spoonfuls of cranberry frappe made of sweetened cranberry juice, can be floated on a light-colored punch that has a citrus or pineapple juice base. Or cranberry juice may be sweetened and spiced and served piping hot. Float thin slices of lime or lemon stuck with whole cloves on this punch.

Sparkling cranberry punch makes enough to serve 20 to 25 persons.

Sparkling Cranberry Punch
1 quart strained cranberry juice
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup strained lemon juice
2 cups water
1 cup strained orange juice
2 cups pineapple juice
1 1/2 quarts ginger ale
A pound of cranberries will yield about a quart of juice. Cover washed berries with water, cook, and strain through cheesecloth in a fine sieve. Mix sugar with hot cranberry juice and chill. Add water and other chilled fruit juices. Just before serving, add the ginger ale. Pour over a block of ice in a punch bowl and serve. Thin slices of lime frozen in the block of ice or in an ice cube tray make a colorful decoration. This punch will be good for you nutritionally too, as it's high in vitamin C or ascorbic acid content.

The cranberry juice may be bought ready prepared instead of making it at home.
